NADEN TO BE HELD IN SUPERMAX

NSW's most wanted man, Malcolm Naden, will be held in maximum security as he awaits trial on multiple charges, including for murder, Attorney General Greg Smith SC said today.

Mr Smith said Naden was refused bail when he appeared in Taree Local Court today and then handed over to Correctives Services officers for the journey to Goulburn Correctional Centre.

There he will be held in the High Risk Management Correctional Centre – known as Supermax – where he will be closely monitored around the clock.

Naden made no application for bail and no statement of facts was tendered. He will again appear in Taree Local Court via audio visual link on April 24.

Naden has been charged with one count of murder, one count of shooting at with intent to murder and two counts of aggravated indecent assault.

Police advised the court that further charges are likely to be laid.

Mr Smith said the Police should be congratulated for apprehending Naden.

“This was an operation which required patience, skill and determination,” Mr Smith said.

“The community can be assured that Naden will now face court on some very serious charges.”
